Where Next for the BBC?

Thursday 18 November 2010

Following last month's shotgun licence fee settlement, the BBC faces new challenges over its future. In charge of finding the answers will be whoever succeeds Sir Michael Lyons as Chair of the BBC Trust.

How should the pain of a 16% real terms cut in Licence Fee income be shared out? How does the BBC accommodate funding the World Service and S4C? What preparations does the BBC Trust need to make for the review of the Charter before it expires in 2016? And what future is there for the BBC Trust itself?

Our distinguished Panel discuss these and other questions, and consider exactly what sort of person would want to be the next Chair of the BBC Trust...
